
BRIGHT COFFEE DATA ANALYSIS

By:Malotse Emanuel Mathipa

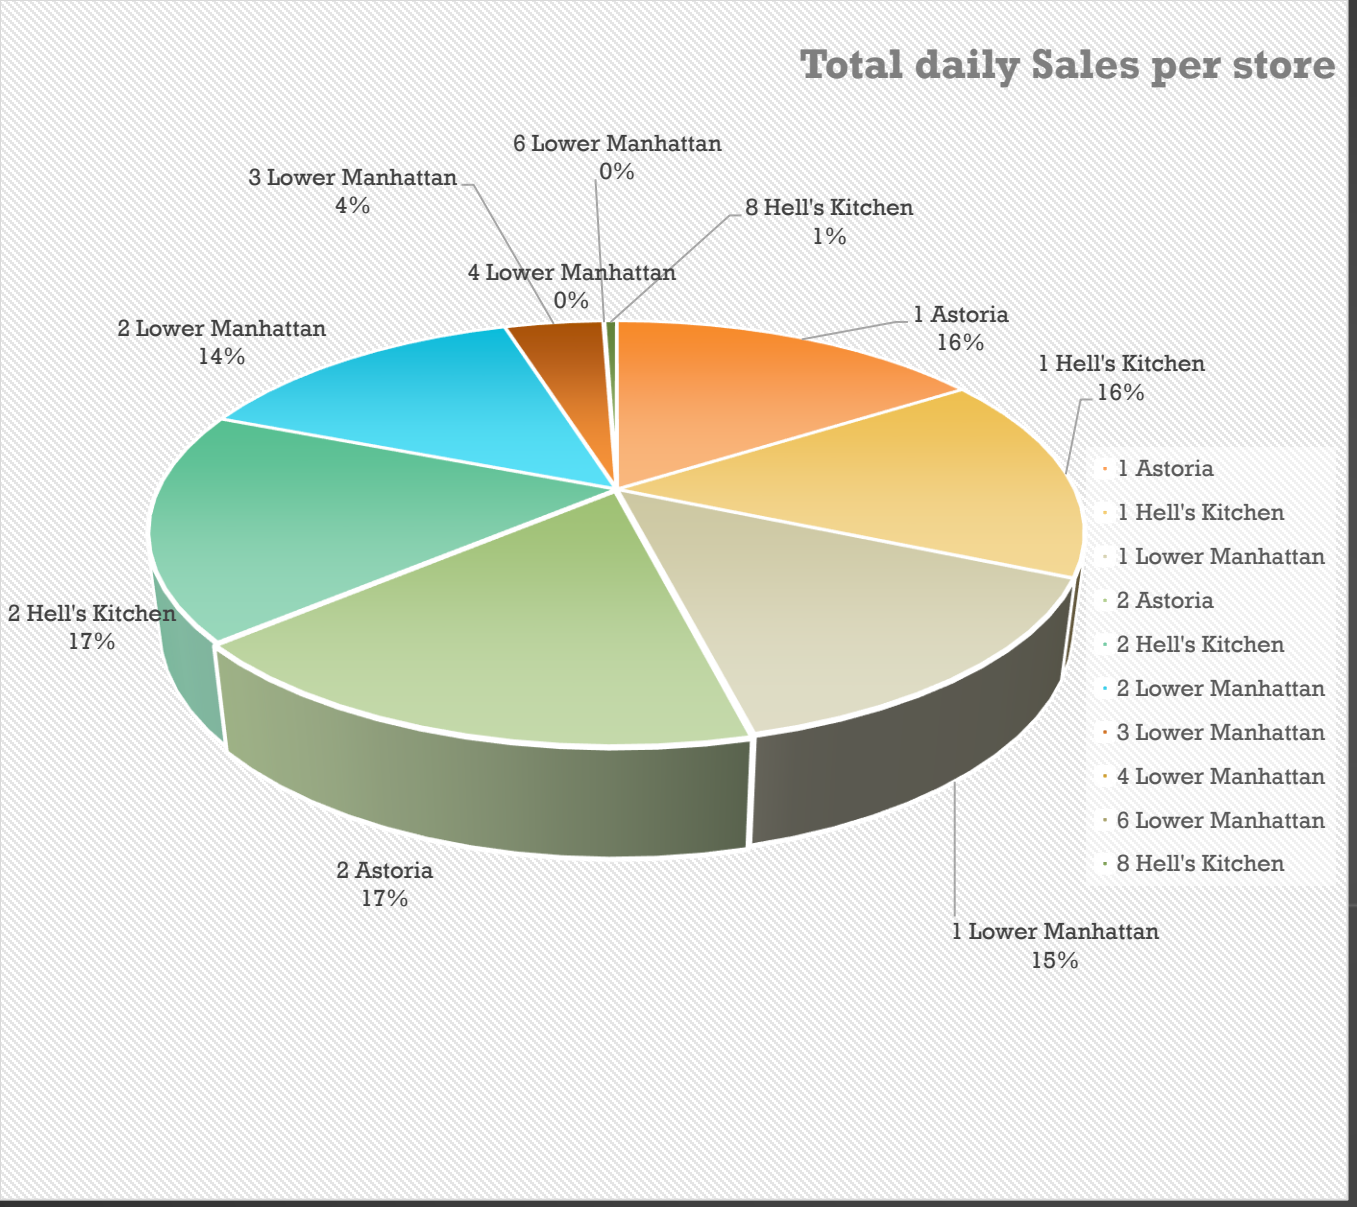
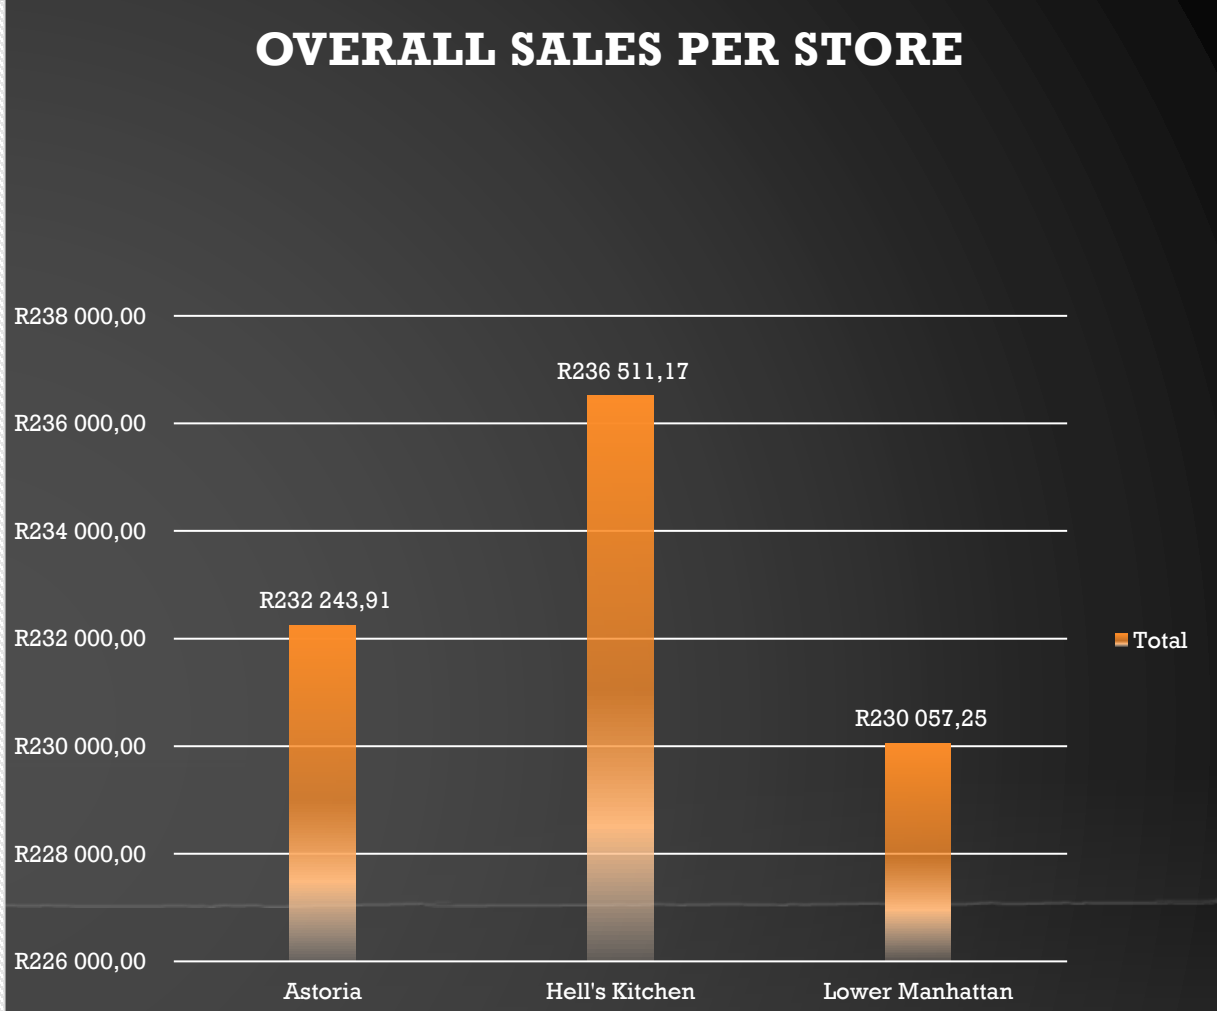
Transaction frequency from the month of January to June month

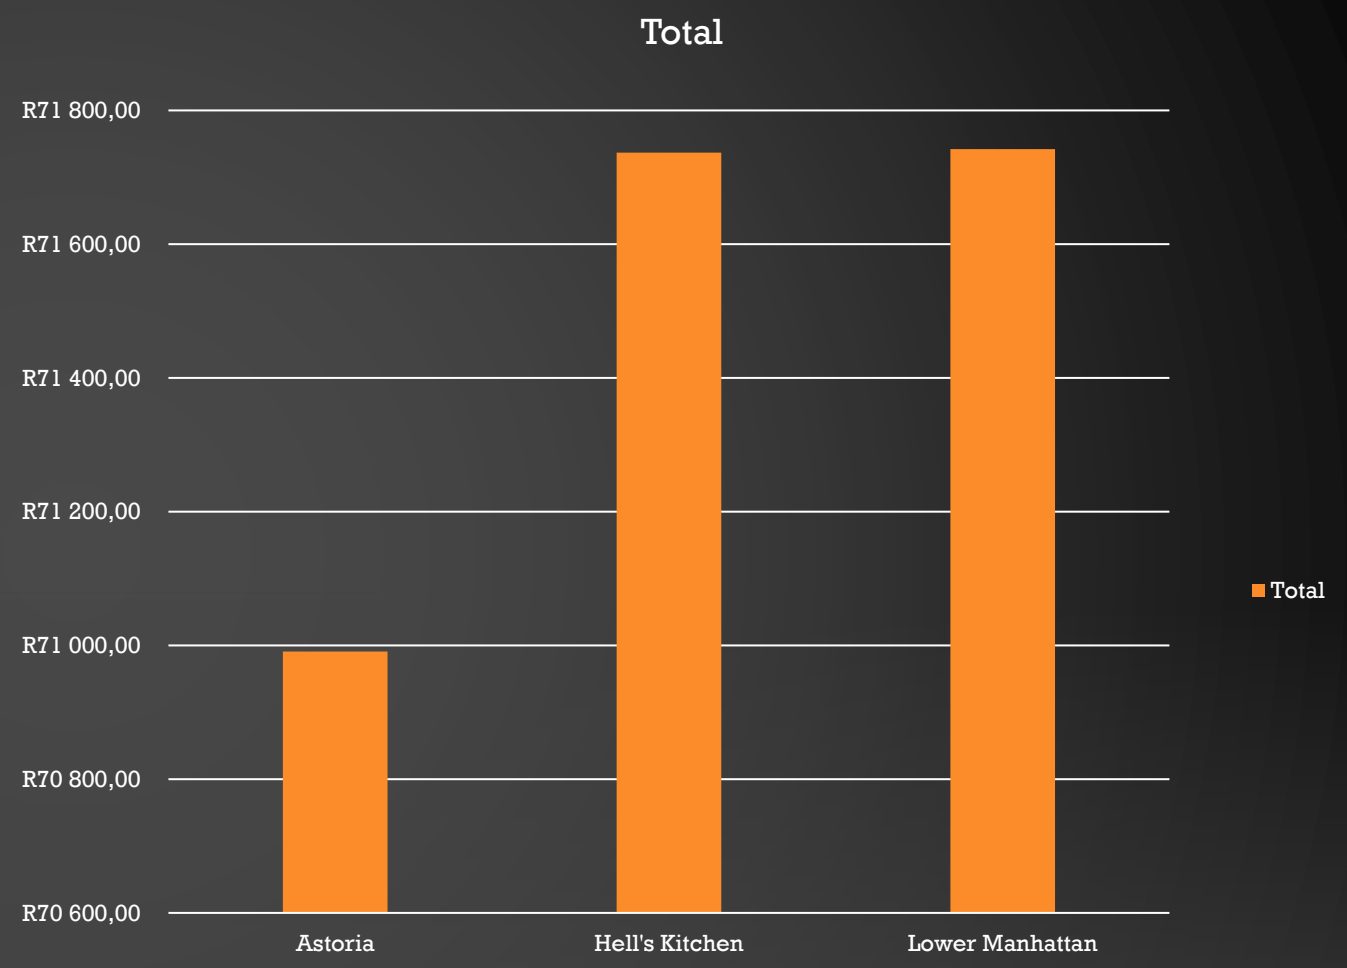




The above Pie chat illustrade the daily sales revenue in percentages per store,and in bar chat we see the total amount of revenue each store was able to generate from January month till June.

The below graph indicates to us which product was able to generate most revenue in the last six months in all three stores individually.

This graph indicate to us the quantity of product sold based on the location of the stores



In the above Bar Chart we are able to observe the sales performance of each of the three stores for the past six months.

TOTAL MONTHLY SALES PER STORE

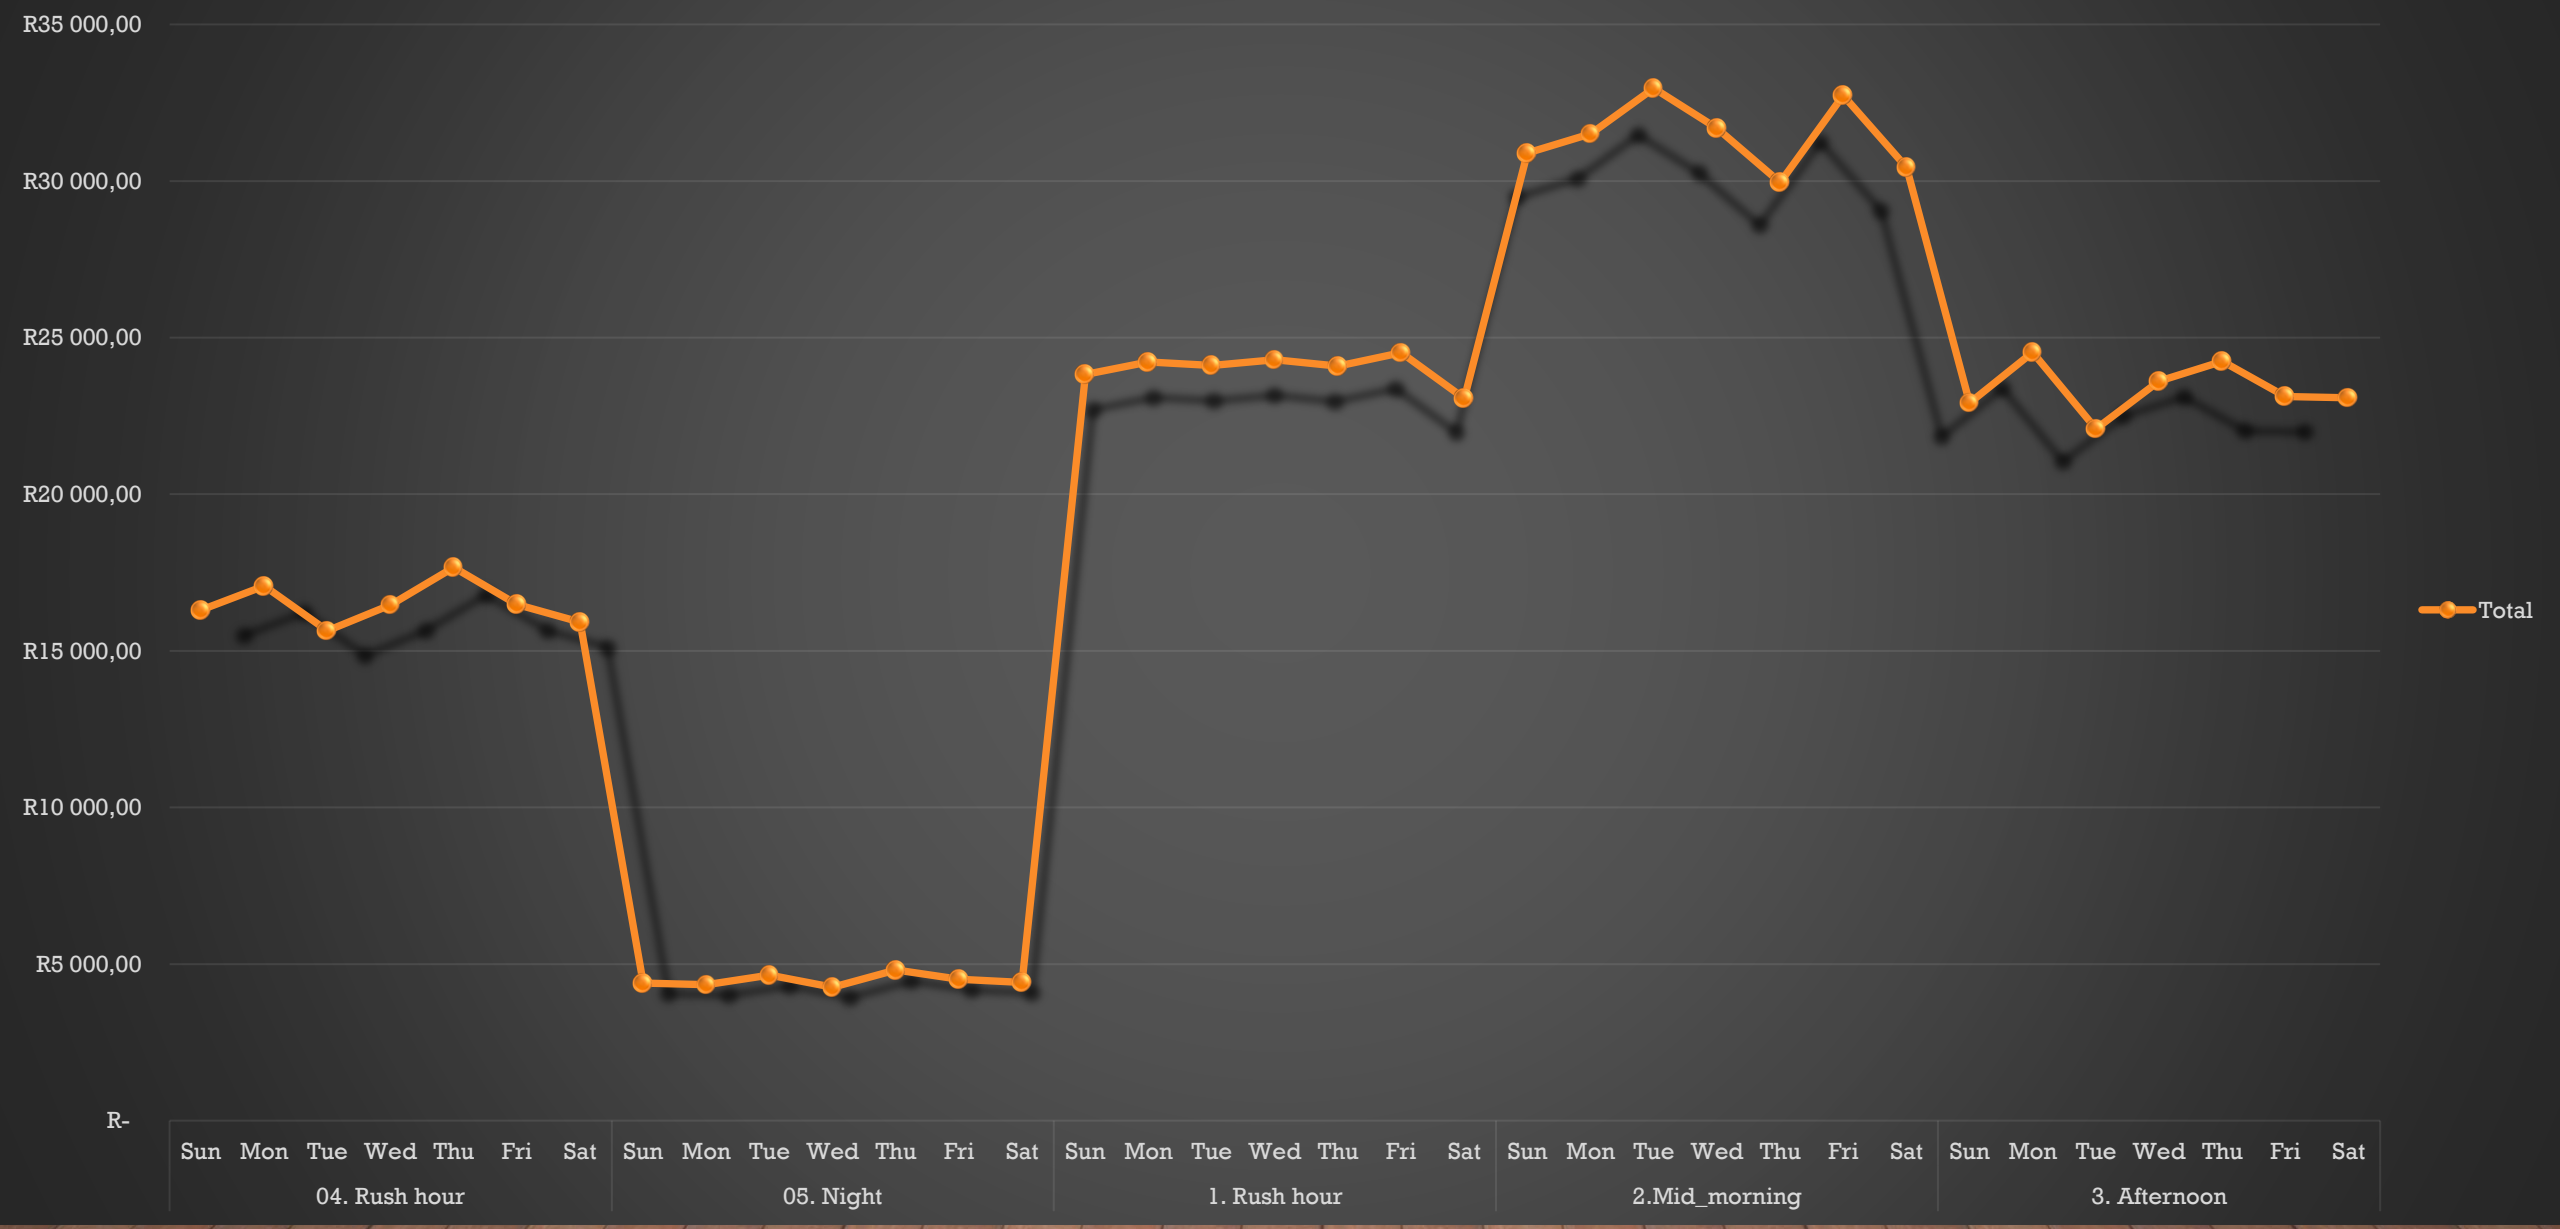
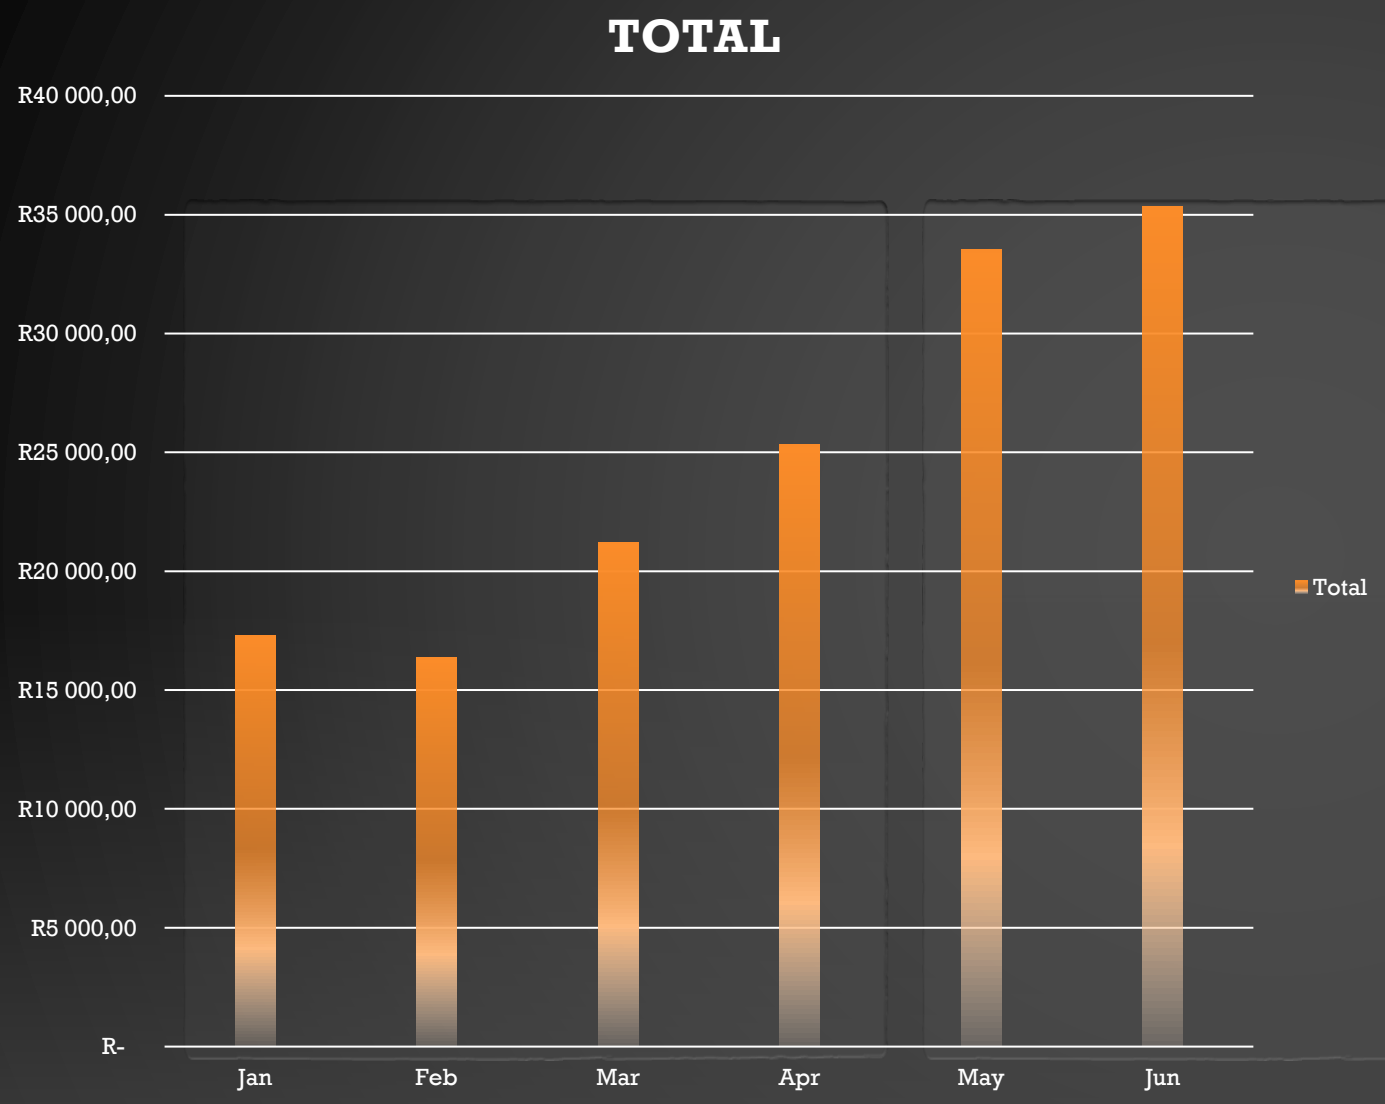
The above Line graph is an indication to us when is peak time and when sales figures deepen during the month.In the above picture it is quiet clear that during month end sales figures slows down and picks up agin from around the 7th and the 8th till around the 27th when it deeps again,so is a continuous parten.

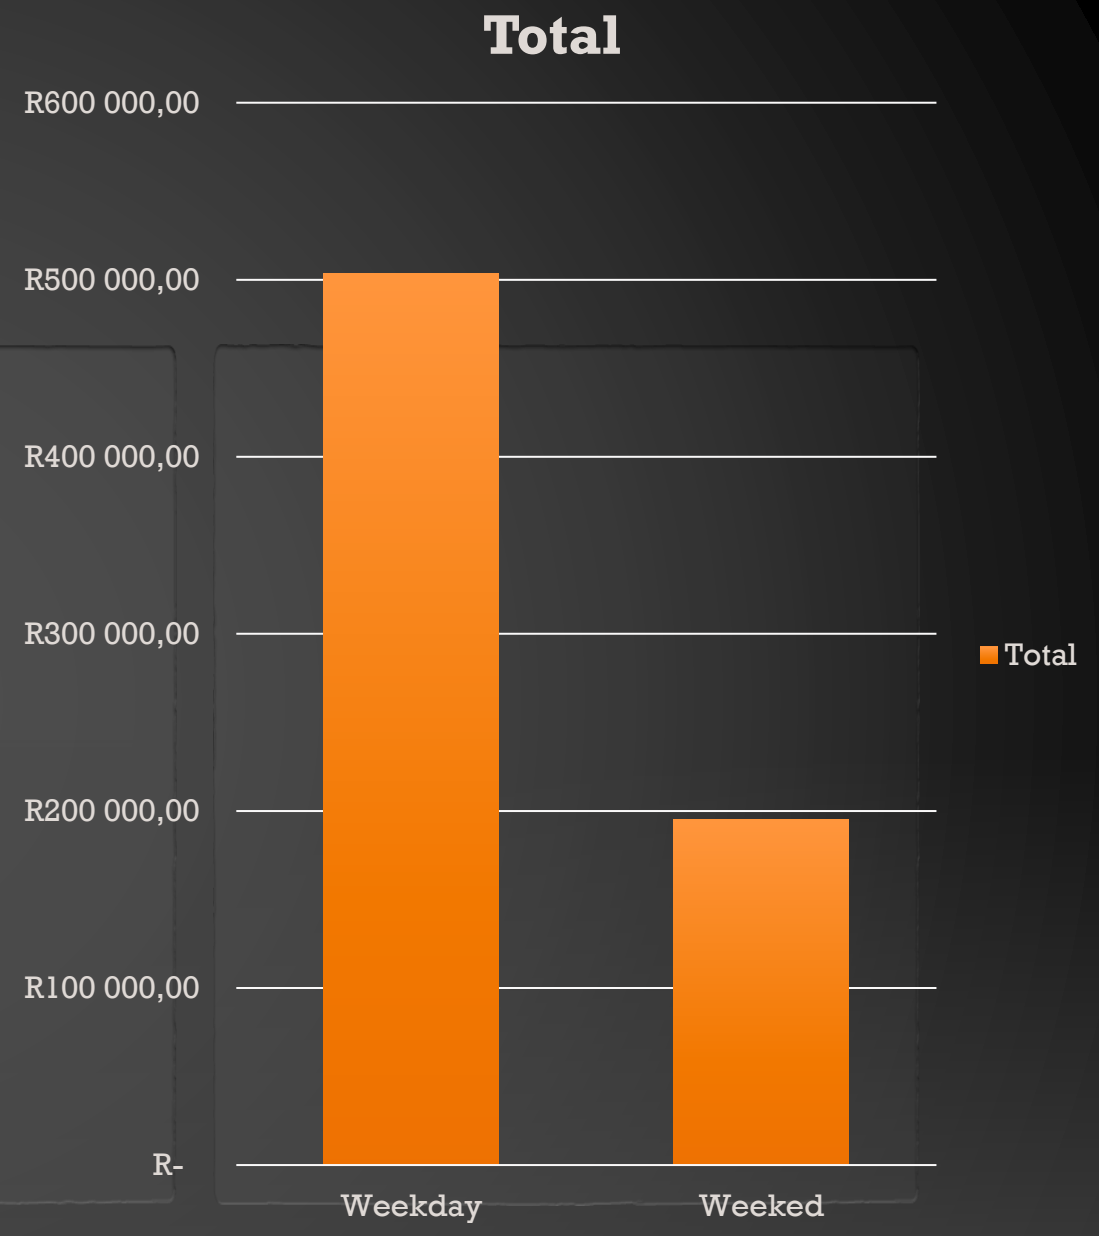
The below in graph is the indication of the most popular product that sold better than the others by each store within the period of six months

An indication to us reflecting weekly transactions



This graph indicates to us the transactions that took place in each store location from Jan till June.





In this graph above,we see the sales comparison during weekdays and over the weekends.This is a clear indication that these shops go much quieter over the weekend with not so many customers to buy.

This is an indication to us the sales revenue each SKU was able to generate within the past six months,January till June.

TOTAL REVENUE PER PRODUCT TYPE

OBSERVATION AND CONCLUSION

- By the look of things,there has been a little negligence as earlier indications were there showing declining sales trends as competition was becoming rife,and nothing was done to combat the situation and turn thing around.
- Only one store was perfoming very well out of the three,but only at a certain times of day during the month.
- There need to be regular promotions such as rewards to promote the products,run a buy one get one free for your partner for a certain while in the month,to try and draw the customers back to the stores.
- Get promoters to give out tasters at traffic lights and intersections,as well as hand out flayers and pamphlets to customers to grab more attention from customers.
- Go wild and be aggressive as much as you can when advertising.Erect Point of sale at each and every space that may freely be available to utilize.
- If monetary recources are available,get one or two billboards up in the highway to create awareness amongst customers for any promotions that may be running at a given time.